Covid-19 Culture Differences

It has been over a year since COVID-19 first upended our plans for the year. 2020 was going to be special! We were going to plan BBQs, Kidzania trips and International exchange events and English camps, and then everything got cancelled. This year too, it's still too early to safely plan any school events of a large scale.

The key to overcoming Covid is an effective vaccine. Now the world has many of them and is making huge efforts to vaccinate their entire population – every country, that is, except Japan, where response to the vaccine has been lukewarm at best. The government was slow to order the vaccine, and does very little to actually promote it. The media largely focuses on the extremely rare cases of side-effects rather than the ten of millions of people who take the vaccine with no problem.

Why is the world eager to get vaccinated, but Japan isn't?

I understand the argument that we need to wait and see the long-term effects of the vaccine. But I also understand the need to trust the scientists and sometimes take a leap of faith.

How things will develop throughout the year is something I do not know, but look forward with optimism that we have a brighter future.
